Glick and St. John Write on Governor Question.

Both Are Supporting J. D. Botkin This Year.

SENATOR GORE HERE

Blind Senator Promises to Make Speech in Topeka.

Long and Bristow May Debate Here Saturday.

It is a decidedly romantic inciden of the present campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kansas that John P. St. John, of Olathe, and George W. Glick, of Atchison, are both supporting J. D. Botkin of Winfield.

St. John was the great prohibition governor of Kansas, who served at the time the prohibitory amendment was adopted. He was elected in 1879, and served two terms. He was nominated for a third term. The Democrats nominated against him George W. Glick, of Atchison. Glick was an anti-prohibition candidate, and the campaign was waged to a great extent on the issue of prohibition. St. John was defeated by about 9,000 majority. and Kansas had its first Democratic governor.

That St. John and Glick should now be united in the support of J. D. Botkin for governor is a most remarkable Another member of the commission returning from Providence is Don P. Halsey of Lynchburg, a son-in-law of Senator John W. Daniel. The commissioners were accompanied to Providence by Edward V. Valentine, the Richmond sculptor, who designed the statue of Lee over the general's tomb in the chapel at Washington and Lee university. Lexington, Va.

Members of the commission express themselves as being greatly pleased with the new statue. Virginia has been for years represented in statuary hall by a figure of Washington, but the other niche to which the old Dominion is entitled, has all this time been vacant because the legislature was willing to accept none but one of Lee.

When the bill was introduced in the Virginia general assembly providing for Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, spent Saturday evening in Topeka, the guest of Owen L. Cope, a former Oklahoma man now employed in this city. While here he agreed to make a speech in Topeka before the November election.

Senator Gore is the famous "blind senator," who is by his friends considered the most able Democratic leader in the United States. He is a wonderful orator, and made one of the speeches seconding Bryan's nomination at the Denver convention. He has not yet made a real speech in the sen-ate, and they don't know what he can do. His only speech was in connection with the last filibuster.

Senator Long and his opponent, J.

No blows were exchanged and the two candidates made it appear that they were on the best very terms.

There are negotiations pending for a joint debate between the two at Topeka next Saturday. Long says that this date will suit him. Robert Stone, who is looking after the Bristow end of the negotiations, says that Bris-tow's dates are all full for this week and that he will have to communi-cate with Bristow before agreeing to come here Saturday. Both sides claim to be honing for the debate.

J. L. Bristow and George Tucker hooked up together at Cottonwood Falls and Strong City Saturday, and held joint meetings at both places. Bristow made the principal speech, and Tucker followed him. Tucker is making a hot fight for the Republican nomination for congress in the Fourth district.

Beginning with his address at Wichita today, Senator Long plans to put in a strenuous week in the political campaign. Each day he will make two or three speeches, and will fill in between with handshaking.

The dates are as follows:
Monday night, July 20, Wichita.

Tuesday, July 21, all day in Sumner county; will speak at Wellington in the afternoon and Caldwell at night. Will visit a number of other towns during the day.

Wednesday, July 22, all day in Cowley county; will speak at Winfield at 2 p. m., Arkansas City at 8 p. m.

Thursday, July 23, all day in Butler county; will speak at Douglass at 10 a. m., Augusta at 2 p. m., Leon at 4 p. m. and El Dorado at 8 p. m.

Friday, July 24, all day in Bourbon county; Fort Scott at 8 p. m.

Saturday, July 25, all day in Johnson county.

Speaking of the senatorial situation in Cherokee county and southeastern Kansas, Judge C. A. McNeill, of Columbus, Kan., said: "So far as Cherokee county is concerned, Senator Long will be an easy winner. There is practically no sentiment for Mr. Bristow in either the city or country precincts. I do not mean to say that there is none or that he will get no votes in this county, but as I said before, he has no active, tangible support. Wm. White's attack upon Mr. Long, his admission that he was in error on many points, his promise to Long, his admission that he was in error on many points, his promise to rectify same and his fallure to do so, has strengthened Mr. Long rather than weakened him in southeastern Kanssas, for in this part of the state we are lovers of fair play.

"Again, Mr. Bristow's many editorials and other writings lauding the senator to the skies at a time when he, Bristow, was not after Long's place are so at a cross with his present position that fair minded people ent position that fair minded people will not fail to wonder why. Ther Mr. Bristow's letter, which he forced Mr. Bristow's letter, which he forced Senator Long to make public, places him in that attitude that he should and certainly will lose the support of every fair honorable man in this contest for it certainly shows him up in a most unenviable light.

"I also believe the Republicans of Kansas recognize in Senator Long one of the ablest United States senators the state has ever had; one who tors the state has ever had; one who is in close touch with the present national administration; one who is nearer Mr. Taft than any man in the speeches seconding Bryan's nomination at the Denver convention. Senator Gore and his wife were on their way home from Colorado, and missed their train connections at McFarland. They decided to come on through to Topeka, and visit Mr. Cope, who makes his headquarters at the Central Y. M. C. A. building.

"Senator Gore is called 'The blind orator of the Wichitas.' He is a most interesting character, in some ways akin to Homer and Milton in his great mental powers and his blindness. He was originally from Mississippi. He lived in Texas for some time, and ran for congress there on the Populist ticket. He moved from Texas to Oklahoma, and has been the leader of the Democratic in that state. He dominated the constitutional convention, and dictated large portions of the new constitution. New York, July 26 .- A slender tower shooting skyward almost a fifth of a mile, from the top of which for-tunate tenants will be able to pul-down a star to light their offices if anything goes wrong with the electric light supply, is planned to replace the Mills building in Broad street.
